Hook Clothespin

FIG.3

How to make a catch.

Figure 2 shows how to hook a clothespin on the line. In Figure 3 several clothespins are floating on the surface of the water. The fishline, with the weight below the water's surface, has been maneuvered into the slot of a clothespin. When the fisherman gets his line into that position, all he has to do to bring the clothespin out of the water is to pull upward.

There should be at least three clothespins for each player. Thus, if there are two players, set at least six clothespins

NEW YORK (AP) - Whatever cuts in excise taxes Congress finally makes the boost to the economy could be a lot larger than the revenue loss to the

Just how big a boost is hard to pinpoint because it involves pricing policies of corporations and the mushrooming effect that lower price tags can have on consumer spending urges.

But both the administration and business are counting upon considerable impetus to spending, and hence all the way back the line to production.

The impetus will be welcome since the Treasury will be collecting about $4.7 billion more from employes and employers in higher Social Security tax Your Money's Worth rates starting Jan . 1 That is, it will be taking that much more and services. Plymouth sales prove it!

THE BIG SWIT IS TO PLYMOUTH

One reason is the 5-year/50,000-mile warranty* on the parts that keep you going.

*Here's how Plymouth's 5-year/50,000-mile engine and drive train warranty protects you: Chryslei Corporation confidently warrants all of the following vital parts of its 1965 cars for 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, during which time any such parts that prove defective in material and workmainship will be replaced or repaired at a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer's place of business without charge for such parts or labor; engine block, lined and internal parts, intake mainfold, water pump, transmission case and internal parts (excepting manual clutch), torque converter drive shaft, universal joints, rear axle and differential and rear wheel bearings. Required maintenance: The following maintenance services are required under the warranty—change engine oil every 3 months or 4,000 miles, while hever comes first, replace oil fifter every second oil change, clean carburetor air fifter every 6 months and replace if every 2 years, and every 6 months furnish evidence of this required service to a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer and request him to certify receipt of such evidence and your car's mileage. Simple enough for such important protection.

Another reason is the 1965 Plymouth Eury. The biggest, plushest Plymouth ever but still solidly in the low-piice class

All Had to Deal With Problems

Compared

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

washington — Comparisons of the manner in which three presidents — Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson — have handled situations in the Caribban handled situati bean are being made nowadays. For instance, former Sen. Kenneth Keating of New York, Republican, said a few days

"If we would have dealt with Cuba the way we are acting in the Dominican Republic, then the Cuban situation would never have gotten out of hand."

What John F. Kennedy might have done in the Dominican crisis is a matter of conjecture, but his brother, Sen. Robert Kennedy, said the other day that he felt President Johnson was wrong in not consulting the Organization of American States before sending Marines to the Dominican Republic. He admitted that the OAS had not been consulted by President Kennedy before the attempted invasion at the Bay of Pigs in 1961. Sen. Kennedy said that he doesn't think "we handled the Bay of Pigs very well," and that his brother had shared that view. Now former President Eisenhower has expressed himself on both the Dominican Republic and Cuba. He told a news conference that he thinks President Johnson was "absolutely right" in what he did to protect American property and to allow a legitimate government to be organized in Santo Domingo. Mr. Eisenhower rejected the suggestion that he himself should have taken similar action when Castro came into power in Cuba, and pointed out that the situation then "was by no means similar."

Castro Was Hero The former president said that the Cuban rebellion, which started about 1957, was applauded in this country and had the support of some of our greatest newspapers. He mentioned that a staff writer of one visited Cuba at the time, "almost single-handedly made Castro a national hero." Mr. Eisenhower added: "Also, the then Sen. John F.

Kennedy said that Castro was following in the footsteps of Bolivar, the great liberator of South America. Castro was then talking in 1959 about free elections. It wasn't until December, 1961, that that man confessed that he was a Marxist and always had been.

"I think the United States would have been called 'interventionist' and 'imperialist' of the worst degree if we had moved quickly in that situa-

Hungarian Revolt

Mr. Eisenhower argued that there is no analogy between the present situation and the revolt in Hungary in 1956. He declared that any action by the United States in Hungary would have meant that the United States would have had to send its military forces through other countries, for which it probably could not have gotten permission, and that the only effective military way would have been to "go directly to Russia with our bombs"-something that would have brought on a major

In the 1960 campaign, Sen. John F. Kennedy challenged the Eisenhower policy in Cuba and implied that it had not been firm enough. But when, in April, 1961, Cuban exiles, trained and equipped with the assistance of the United States, attempted an invasion at the Bay of Pigs, the Kennedy administration wobbled and finally cancelled an air strike in support of the attacking forces. This, in the view of many, precipitated the defeat of the exile group. The question of whether the Kennedy administration should have gone ahead and used Marines and air cover in Cuba will always be debated, with neither side being able to offer a conclusive argument as to what course would have been proved better in the long run.

Red Missiles When Soviet missiles were discovered in Cuba in 1962, the Kennedy administration mobilized American military power and demanded that the missiles: be removed. To this day, it is not known whether the missile bases have neen rendered completely useless or whether the trained Russian technicians who remain in Cuba can still acti-and America should be endanvate such bases in a short time. gered once again by reason of But, just as Mr. Eisenhower missiles bases in Cuba, there says that the people of the will be a renewed demand that United States would not have the United States take the sanctioned intervention in Cuba necessary risks and rid itself of during his administration, so it a hostile base so close to the may be argued that public shores of this country.

Outagamie County Republicans

Criticism of the Wisconsin Republican Party for lack of constructive thinking at its state convention in La Crosse two weeks ago should not be interpreted as a blanket condemnation of all segments of the party's membership. While criticism of the "Communist-under-every-strawstack attitude" of the whole group is necessary, it is unfair to use this as a basis for criticizing all rank-and-file elements of the state party, particularly the delegation from Outagamie County.

The resolution that attracted so much press notice was the one calling for a ban on Communist speakers on campuses of state-supported educational institutions. Since it was a standing vote, various press reports said the resolution was supported "overwhelmingly," "by a vast majority" and "drew solid support." Whatever those terms represent, it's accurate to say there was an absence of "overwhelming support" in the Outagamie County delegation; in fact, it's safe to say the Outagamie unit was evenly split on the issue. One of the main supporters for Wilbur Renk, who started a floor fight by opposing the resolution, was Max Hensel, treasurer of the Outagamie party and an avid Goldwater backer in the last election. Hensel argued that action of this type drives Communists "from a place you can watch them to some place we can't control"

Another responsible voice was that of Arnold Peterson, chairman of the UW's Young Republicans, who said the resolution wasn't needed because "we can outspeak, out-debate and make a fool out of the other side" Peterson, a cool young man, sensibly told his elders that they should support student groups doing good work like the UW group which presented 6,000 signatures to President Johnson endorsing the U S policy in Viet Nam.

Outagamie County's Republican Party has at various times, been called "an assortment of conservative kooks," "a bunch of John Birchers," "a group of ultrarightists," and most often, an assortment of never-say-die "McCarthyites." If reports of 50 votes against the resolution is accurate, it is equally accurate to report that about 25 per cent of the convention's "no" votes came from Outagamie County's "kooks" To name just a few, some of the Outagamie delegates who opposed the resolution were Mrs. Peter Nelson, chairman of the Outagamie County Federation of Republican Women; Mrs. Harley Splitt, vice-chairman of the county unit, and Hensel, the party treasurer.

One more point needs to be brought up-support and opposition to the resolution wasn't all "white" on one side and "black" on the other, there was a "gray" ground in between. While State Sen. Gordon Roseleip of Darlington and his supporters wasted the convention's time with something that shouldn't have been there in the first place, some delegates voted "aye," but not because they agreed with Roseleip's contention that subversives should be banned completely. There was a more objective reason for support. Assemblyman Dave Martin of Neenah said state tax money shouldn't be used to support the appearances of known subversives and Communists on the campuses of state universities. "It would he acceptable," Martin said, "if the sponsors paid the rent for a hall or a classroom," but not if taxpayers have to pay the bill.

One of the convention's most "moderate" resolutions, and one of its most commendable ones, was the one supporting voting rights legislation. The resolution called for congressional legislation which would assure all citizens of the United States their constitutional right to vote "without discrimination on account of race or color." If it hadn't been for Outagamie County's Republicans, the resolution wouldn't have been before the state convention. The resolution went through the county unit's caucus without dissension. Outagamie County then brought the resolution to the Eighth District caucus where a floor fight was necessary to get it passed The original Outagamie County resolution, adopted by the Eighth District caucus, became the one before the state convention. No other county or district caucus in the state passed a voting rights can't redesign College Avenue and expect everything else to fall in place automatically. This just doesn't happen in a city where there is a rate of rapid urbanization and mounting traffic problems presented by the influx of motorists to the downtown

These points repudiate the contention of many that Outagamie County's Republican unit is an ultra-conservative one. While the county party does have its share of extreme conservatives, the majority seem to fall into the moderate mold of Republicanism. And based on perform- present crisis and what does ances at the state convention, no other that involvement signify for delegation seems justified in making that the future?

Three schemes presented by the consultants showed what can be done to redesign and "backstop" the College Avenue business area. It would appear that one of them comes closest to meeting Appleton's requirements, and with some modification, could fill the bill for the present and future.

The report was officially received by the Common Council last week. There has been talk and studies for years on what to do about College Avenue. It would seem we are now at the crossroads and the time is ripe for action in making a final

The Meadow at Runnymede

The philosophic ties of the United States to Great Britain as well as those of the late President John F. Kennedy were emphasized in the ceremonies dedicating the memorial to Kennedy by Queen Ebzaheth

The importance of the Magna Carta, signed by King John in the Runnymede meadow under pressure from his nobles, goes far beyond its terms which were certainly not democratic as we understand it today. It was one of the many steps in Anglo Saxon history toward freedom of the individual and an undermining of tyranny of royalty or the state. The quotation from President Kennedy's inaugural address carved on the memorial stone at Runnymede was most perfinent: "Let every nation know whether it wishes us well or ill that we shall pay any price. bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend or oppose any foe in order to assure the survival and success of liberty "

Much of our heritage from England is also literary as Mrs. Kennedy stated in herremarks of thanks to the British people and her quotation from William Wordsworth "Your literature and lives of your great men shaped him as did no other part of his education, you share with me thoughts that he too deep for tears."

The deading of three acres of historic Runnymede recalls Robert Brooke's famous poem, written shortly before he was killed in action in World War I:

If I should die, think only this of

That there's a corner of a foreign

That is forever England

There are now three acres of a field dedicated to liberty and courage that will be forever American.

Looking Backward

English Press on President Johnson

Quoted from the Appleton Motor for May 18, 1865.

Advices from the Hibernian say much uneasiness was evinced in England in regard to the assassination of President Lincoln, from the fact that Andrew Johnson would take his place, yet favorable deductions were drawn from inauguration at Washington and also from the tenor of various speeches. The London Times suggests that Mr. Johnson should resign voluntarily, or in case of his failing to do so, that public epinion should be so expressed in regard to him as to lead him to resign

The News says it has made careful queries and is assured on reliable authority that the incident so regrettable, which occurred at his installation as vice president, cannot, without injustice, be taken to represent Mr. Johnson's character, as those who know him well describe him as a man of real capacity and temperate habits. The News adds: "We must walt awhile before we pass judgment upon him.

The course which matters have taken in this respect and the admirable manner in which President Johnson has borne himself will astonish the folks over the water greatly.

Legislators Pay More Attention to Letters Than to Any Petitions

MADISON-A listener in the legislative galleries on any typical day of deliberations is likely to conclude that there is an unusual volume of petitions from rank and file citizens

But that listener, upon inouiry and examination, would also conclude that the petition mail reaching the legislature has no more discernible influence on legislative behavior this year than in any other

The fact may be disappointing, or offensive, to those many earnest persons who no doubt spend a considerable amount of time and energy in collecting signatures on petitions offering advice on such popular questions as oleomargarine regulation, trading stamps, beer drinking regulations for minors, taxation of various services and commodities and scores of others.

But they would be better advised to write individual letters to their state senators or assemblymen.

There is no substitute for the thoughtful, informed letter by a live constituent in the business of influencing legislators from representative dis-

The typical petition is submitted to a local area representative, who turns it in to the office of the house directed to the legislature on clerk where it is stapled carefully to a blue-paper cover and returned to the representative, who then "introduces" it. That merely means that the item is recorded in the journal of the house and referred to a committee, which deposits it in the archives and forgets all

Occasionally an energetic legislator or one whose secretary doesn't have enough serious work to keep her engaged will copy the names of the petitions sent to him, for such value as they may have in future political mailing lists. But it is a hazardous exercise, for the scribbled names are mostly difficult to transcribe, and there is no voter who is more indignant than one whose name is misspelled when he hears from his legislator.

ANOTHER WAY

All this is not to say that communications to legislators are not useful. They are. But they impress the legislator only when they are genuine, that is to say. when they truly reflect the deliberate opinion of a voter or a group of voters who took the pains to write directly. I was riding on a train through Iowa the day after Easter, when the realization suddenly struck me that I had become, perhaps not an old fogey, but surely a middleaged fogey. Thus does time creep up upon us implacably.

The train was filled with college boys returning from vacation. They cruised up and high spirits? For finding them down the aisles, pretending to be tipsy on the bottle of beer each had drunk in the club car with forged ID cards. They were boisterous but not really obnexious: looking for fun, but not trouble.

U. S. Has Record Of Intervention In Latin America

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Johnson not only ran up against history. He got hung on

He got on the hook when he sent Marines into the Domin-ican Republic. This was intervention in the internal affairs of a Latin - American country, something the United States had promised not to do.

The promise is in writing even though Johnson gave two reasons for his action: first, to save American lives in the Dominican revolution, next, to prevent a Communist takeover.

He hasn't changed that second position even though the leader of the rebels, Col. Francisco Caamano Deno, on Sunday pictured himself on national television in this country as anti-Communist.
